Investment Strategy

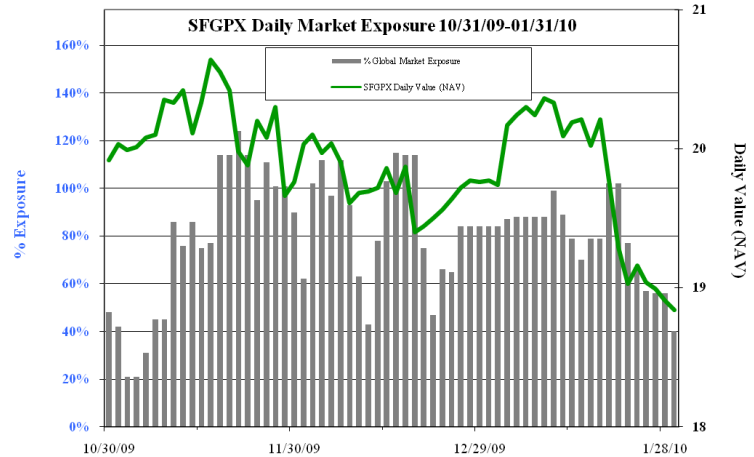

Hundredfold Advisors, LLC (Subadvisor) uses multiple independent investment strategies to manage risk. These trading strategies create buy and sell signals based on technical analysis of market trends, including price action, momentum, advance-decline lines, market highs and lows as well as the overall direction of the market. The strategies employed could produce frequent trading of the Fund's securities in an attempt to position its portfolio. The Fund may employ leveraged investment techniques that magnify risk, making the Fund more volatile. Fund investors could lose or gain more money compared to market averages. When market trends signal a defensive position, cash or cash equivalents will be used or positions held may be hedged by implementing short equity positions. The Subadvisor may also hedge against currency risk to seek reduced exposure to foreign currencies.

The risks associated with the Funds are detailed in the prospectus which include risks of the Subadvisor's investment strategy, aggressive investing techniques, high portfolio turnover, investing in ETF's, investing in other investment companies, swap agreements, asset-backed securities, leverage, shorting and non-diversification. Aggressive investing techniques would include the use of futures, enhanced betas and shorting securities. Shorting occurs when investors sell securities they do not own and are committed to repurchasing eventually. Because the Fund's holdings include small-cap, mid-cap, and international equities, there are additional risks such as the possibility of greater price volatility and reduced liquidity, fluctuations in currency exchange rates, and political diplomatic and economic conditions as well as regulatory requirements in foreign countries. There are additional risks associated with investing in instruments rated below investment grade (i.e., junk bonds) because such instruments generally involve greater risk of default or price changes than other types of fixed-income instruments, therefore the Fund's performance may vary significantly as a result.
